

Dewensbron

Now and then Mr. and Mrs. Jacquemyn celebrate the reins again. Now and then we jump off the band and even "take it of it." On the occasion of a birthday party in Limburg far we made a party to have a fun weekend. You can do this through traditional book a hotel, or as we did, just surfing the web. and so we came out in Borgloon, the Leemzaal Kerniel to 37, a hamlet of this parish.

Rolling countryside, picturesque cottages, a holiday in the interior, which was our first impression when we left the highway. Winding roads, speed 70 Km / hour, a good music on the radio we ended up in The Source Wish, a name that could refer to Grimm's Fairy Tales or albums of Bob and Bobette, though they are not always politically correct. The cottage, which lies between a small farm and love the gingerbread house of Hansel and Gretel. Note: I exaggerate nothing, a fake stork on the roof, in the small pond in the garden a fake swan (no flashing light), and here and mushrooms, trolls, and references to the residents of this building.

The owner opened it, it turned out to be a thoroughbred Englishman who bore the name George. The kind of 70 year old grandfather that you enjoyed listening to on cold winter nights. Until one year he did his B & B with his wife when he only came to stand, he wanted to quit the business, but his neighbours (including British) turned it on to go on, issue among the people to keep coming. The fact that the house is a little large for a man just played along.

We experienced an incredible weekend here, almost immediately got the door key, instructions on how and where the jukebox was working and the refrigerator was Mr. George went to his favorite pub. Only downside was the bathroom in the corridor if more rooms were occupied, but we had the 'digs' for ourselves what made this B & B more than half home a cheap hotel.

Breakfast at the Wishing Well is therefore to choose an English or European. Saturday there were eggs and bacon, Sunday croissants with cheese and ham and marmalade. You see dear reader, it should not always about politics in this newspaper. If you wish to De Bron would: put George greetings from us!